Take Me Out to the Ball Game

Batter up: We hit a home run with our trip to Polar Park. The WooSox knocked it out of the park with a 16–1 win, the weather couldn't have been better, and the company was simply the best. It was an afternoon full of cheers, smiles, and lasting great memories.

Meet Your New Neighbors

JOANNE LITSTER

Joanne was born in Bennington, Vermont and graduated from the former St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing in Pittsfield, Massachusetts. She married her husband, John, in 1958, and together they lived in Vermont and New Hampshire before settling in Massachusetts for the following 60 years. In 1961, Joanne began her nursing career at Boston City Hospital, dedicating herself to caring for others.

Joanne is the proud mother of two sons and two daughters. Her family has grown to include seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild, and she considers them her greatest accomplishment and source of pride. She and her family made many cherished memories while camping throughout New England, Virginia, and Colorado.

While in high school in Vermont, Joanne competed in a quiz show. Today, she enjoys reading and knitting. She also has a lifelong appreciation for antiques and enjoys collecting blue glass and books.

Joanne moved to New Horizons to be closer to family and friends and is looking forward to meeting new people and becoming an active member of the community.

NORMAN MARSHALL

Norman was born and raised in Waltham and earned a degree in English from Boston University. He enjoyed a successful career in corporate communications, where he leveraged his talent for simplifying complex information to manage technical writing. His passion for writing also led him to author "That Man Tate and Kindred Spirits: Stories from the Allagash," a biography of a beloved pastor that was featured in the newspaper.

One of Norman's greatest blessings is his family. He and his beloved wife, Ann, shared 60 years of marriage after meeting at a high school dance. According to Norman, it was "love at first sight." The pair lived in Hudson and together raised four children. Today, their family has grown to include 10 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The Marshalls shared a memorable moment in the spotlight when Ann won the Massachusetts State Pie Baking Championship. She went on to place third in the nation and was featured on "Good Morning America."

A sports enthusiast, Norman has earned awards for competing in tennis championships and continues to enjoy playing golf and tennis, dancing, and staying physically fit. He looks forward to remaining active, enjoying live entertainment, attending church, and getting to know his fellow residents.

Meet Your New Neighbors

PETER & DIANA HAMILTON

Diana and Peter are New York natives whose love story began with an introduction from one of Peter's colleagues. When asked what they are most proud of, both say their marriage. They are grateful for one another and cherish the happy life they have built together.

Diana was born in Dunkirk and graduated from Hartwick College in Oneonta, where she prepared for a career in teaching. She was recognized for bringing General Motors executives into her classroom to share their career experiences and inspire students.

Peter was born in Rochester and graduated from Franklin & Marshall College in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. He enjoyed a successful banking career and was honored for helping to launch, and serving as a spokesperson for, an Alzheimer's awareness initiative in Rochester. After retiring, he used his natural talent for fixing and building things to establish his own handyman business.

The Hamiltons spent many years enjoying their homes on Lake Conesus, New York and in Duxbury, Massachusetts. They have one daughter in Australia and one son closeby in Newton, along with two grandchildren and a beloved cat. One of their favorite memories is visiting their daughter and family in Australia.

Diana enjoys sewing and playing cribbage, while Peter still enjoys putting his handyman skills to good use. Together they love taking long walks, reading, and exploring local towns. They look forward to participating in activities, such as the Mystery Ride and visits to the Wayside Inn, museums, and local farms.

*We are thrilled to extend a warm welcome to Peter, Diana, Joanne, and Norman.
Please join us in supporting them as they settle into their new homes.*
